Team Player or Spectator?

Sure-Fire Strategies to Get Everybody in the Game

Working collaboratively is not a natural talent. Today, more than ever, people must develop their abilities to work with others constructively. As organizations place a greater focus on teamwork rather than individual decision-making, productive teamwork becomes critical to success. Kristin will share her insights to inspire collaboration among your co-workers to achieve extraordinary results.

So What? Now What? A Call to Action

Are you looking for an interactive, upbeat session to end your conference? Interested in quantifying your participants' return on investment (ROI) and your return on objectives (ROO)? Kristin engages your conference participants to recognize their key learnings and create a team-based plan to successfully implement their ideas.

CLIENT COMMENTS

McKechnie Vehicle Components, Newberry SC

"Everyone agrees that you're one of the best trainers/speakers with which we've ever been associated and one of the key reasons our plant implementation of team problem solving has gone so well."

Naval Air System Team, U.S. Navy, Washington DC

"Kristin Arnold was tremendous! Her skills are top-notch, her enthusiasm infectious, and she easily turned our skeptics (including me) into team building advocates. We're still raving about it a year later!"

Horizon Lines, Dallas, TX

"With years of experience in team leadership, Kristin has the ability to walk into a room, evaluate the situation, and take immediate action with superb results."

U.S. Forest Service, Washington DC

"You are a marvelous teacher and a great role model for working with people."

Kristin Arnold, MBA, CMC, CPF, CSP Master Facilitator and Executive Team Specialist

Kristin Arnold has a passion for teams. An internationally acclaimed speaker, trainer and author, she gives executives and employee teams the edge, helping them achieve higher performance ...but without the fluff.

Her powerful and provocative presentation style connects with audiences looking for tested workplace solutions. Drawing from her vast repertoire of proven business practices, Kristin delivers practical tools and techniques they can use immediately after her programs.

One of the first female graduates of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, Kristin spent 11 years on active duty and retired after an additional ten years in the USCG Reserves. She has been actively involved with various business and civic groups including serving as a National Director of the National Speakers Association and Past President of the Downtown Hampton Development Partnership. With an MBA in Marketing Strategy and over two decades of successful business practice in teamwork, she brings her audiences the wise perspective and practicality of her unique background – in both military and business arenas – as a team member, leader and facilitator.
